Rey. Dr. Van Dyke in General Assembly. The paper which I hold in my hand, ublished in this city, this morning, (the Chicago Times), says that Dr. Van Dyke, "more is the pity, sends unbaptized child-ren, and heathens, and unconverted Christians, and papiets, and rationalists carrianns, and papists, and rationalizations all to hell." Then he (the writer) goes on to say that Dr. Ellis and Dr. Ellis wood and Dr. Irving all concur in these sentiments. [Lond language ter.]

Applause, I love the Lord Jesus Christ because of His own precious blood He redeemed me, and I love Him the more, I think, because I believe that now, on His throne, He is repeating not only the His words but His actions, when He said, "Suffer little children to come unto Me and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of heaven." It relieves my mind of much of the dark shadow that son has brought over this world, and which the broad neres of little graves the deepen in my heart, that God skees them ber and folds them in the fold of the Great Shepherd above.

members of your congregation, recognizing the necessity of a Catholic school, where it is practicable, but, at the same time, considering it to be our duty to give our children as good an education as possible, but owing to the incompetency of the present teacher of our parish school, it is impossible for us to do so,
and wanting to do our duty as Catholics,
we are prevented from so doing by reason of the incompetency of said teacher.
We, therefore, beloved pastor, for the above stated reasons, respectfully petition you to remove said incompetent teacher, and secure one in her place who will have all the necessary qualifications for giving our children at least as good a common education as they would receive at the free schools. Then you will find us all

REFLY.

To Mesers.

After deliberate consideration, I am ready to make reply to your pelition for the removal of the school teacher. The tone of your letter pleased me exceedingly, as evincing a succer desire to be respectful; but your ignorance of principles and of circumstances, though not insulting, has been painful to me. You see, it is only those who have been duly tordained and commissioned by the successors of the Apostles, who have the lauthority and obligation of teaching religion to all nations. This authority is not simply to preach a sermon on Sunday or a stated salary, but it is to teach religion at all times when there is any one to learn. Lay persons have no right to meddle in this matter.

Even if the assertion you make in your letter concerning the inferior secular education given by our present teachers were true, what then? Where in the revelation of God's will to men is there a warrant for the principle—"First the body, second the soul?" The business of any life, and of the life of every priest, is do insist on the contrary principle, and to preach, "in season and out of season," "What shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?"

We all know that in the free schools do morality, no religion, no knowledge of God—the sole source of all knowlings—are taught; but that immoralities are practiced, and principle and science.

that our teachers give an education inferior to that of the 1ree schools, is untertive. Without van boasting, I think that ten years of Seminary life ought to qualify me to pass judgment on the composition of a spring that I do not believe that, after passing finary college and seminary according to the skered order of the priesthood, I have at last been veritably and 15,000 Mestern Union.

The state of the skered order of the priesthood, I have at last been veritably and the capeta each an application of your sentence of incompetency passed upon the teacher. But that is its true maning. If you thought the teacher incompetency? Why did you make common talk of it before your children, you make the state of the work son and try to show proofs of that incompetency? Why did you make common talk of it before your children, you find the state of it? Why did you not come forward and join heartly in a work so necessary of it? Why did you not come forward and join heartly in a work so necessary of it. Why did you make common talk of it before your children? You ought to have known that your pastor is in the habit of speading at least two-thirds of his time in the school, which is to him his degreat consolation. He shall be a state of the work so necessary in the remedy for it in their arithmetic. He is to him his degreat consolation. He welfare of your children? You ought to have known that your pastor is in the habit of speading at least two-thirds of his time in the school, which is to him his degreat consolation. He welfare of your children, you have no need of a school you will have sought out not the scandal but the remedy for it in their arithmetic. He has never passed a week without at least a day in the school. The teacher is not qualified that I have persistently recently when she left. Still the school who have no number of a priest.

If you wish to do your duty as Catholies, he pupper the school by both means and good words; and be content to believe that I, having been appointed to the priest and the priest

The Moderator—Dr. Van Dyke, have your remarka anything to do with the passage of this resolution concerning the work of publication?

Dr. Van Dyke—They have, sir, as I will show you before I complete them. He (the writer) classes me, and even you, sir, among the old fogies, or Bourbons, and intimates that the younger men have a different doctrine upon this subject.

I wish to say in all seriousness, and the gentleman to whom I have referred not having an opportunity to reply, and malk kindness, in respect to whoever wrote this, that he has fallen into no slight mistake. Perhaps he did not have the privilege of going to Princeton or he would have understood it better. [Laugh-tier] Now, I do not believe that either a child or a man is sent to hell because he is unbaptized. The frac-ture was clearly marked, and the part be-low the fracture being lifted out of the box, the ends of the bones were of a pure whiteness, leaving no doubt as to the fact that Booth, in leaping from the box, had fractured his right leg, and not sprained it.

Still, the identity of the body was not satisfactorily established, especially as there was no part of the spinal vertebra missing and no mark of any bullet upon them. A brother of Booth's was sent for, and requested to think of some peculiarity, if any existed, in the structure of his brother that would forever remove any doubt. After thinking for a brief while the brother said that all he could remember was that his brother that his tooth plugged with gold in a peculiar manner. He described the position of the tooth, and drew with a pencil the shape of the plug, which was of unusual size. The teeth were taken out, and the tooth was found plugged just as described by the brother, and forever setting at rest any question of the identity of the body. The body was buried in Greenmount Cemetry, in the same lot with his grandfather, father, and other children of the family.—Baltimore Gasette, 24th.
